Enjoy and have fun!

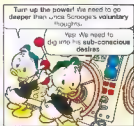

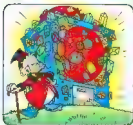

"which meant
a quick trip to Peru!"

Look

Great! I don't know where it is!

Of course it's a mountain, but you Europeans! You always think always it's a mountain!

Look! I don't know where it is!

Look! I don't know where it is!

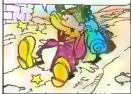

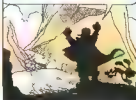

Yeah, well we made a deal and I'm holding you to it! You won't kick me out when I bring back the treasure!

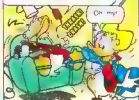

Ha. My ancestors' traps will spit you out the way you spit out the badanga root!

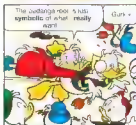

Sigh... They did, too! never did get that treasure!

Bah! Let me out of here! I've told you what you wanted to know!

Next morning —

All set for take off?

Good! But did you manage to get enough oil? I forgot to go to pay for the fuel.

Yes, sir. We've got a full load of auto parts, farm machinery, and fresh Dutchess oranges.

I even managed to find a paying passenger.

Goodness me! Schmeiger! What a strange
passenger!

That evening, high over Peru —

Hi! The Brigia thinks she's so smart, just because she knew I never tell on a paying passenger.

But she didn't count on my bailing out the aircraft we got over Lima.

And I cover my tracks by spending the night in the first hotel I come across.

Ah! That plan will disappear into the air.

Hot milk... ummm... is?

Another day
dawns.

Where

But suddenly at the train station

There's no way she can know he's going to Gumbo much less that he's on the train.

Some man safety has seen the last of her.

but do you think this pot is big enough to cook a badanga root?

«ARGH!»

it's a joint expedition that leaves Cuzco —

My goodness, Scrooge! You've got quite a backpack there! What possessed you to bring so much food and water?

If you must know, I'm not taking any chances of starving before I get that treasure.

After three days of hard driving, they find themselves high up in the Andes Mountains. —

20k Piz is on top of that mountain! There's no road to it, so we'll have to walk up an old Inca trail.

That, huh? May be the village you told us about. Let's visit it first.

Huh? Why?

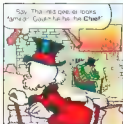

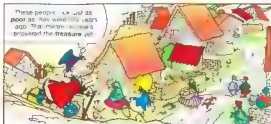

Well, you'll want to make sure your deal with the Chief is still good, right?

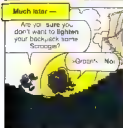

Hm... good idea.

And since your birthday is only 6 days away now, I need to have a little chat with the Chief's wife.

I suspect that Scrooge's little Phiz is definitely a two-gasp wonder.

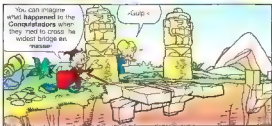

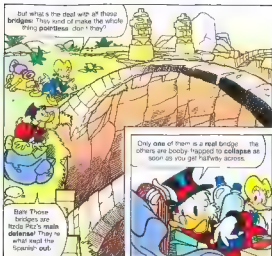

Ok! We'll set up camp at the base of the first intact bridge, and try to cross over in the morning.

Yes, we can see why the Incas built the place on top of that upturned pinnacle.

and we can see that the deep chasm surrounding it is better than any European castle's moat.

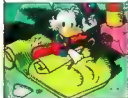

Hm, didn't notice a number of collapsed bridges? What happened to them?

Well, a few unlucky treasure hunters have tried to use them over the centuries.

And, uh, tested three unlike those poor souls I tried to catch the air.

Say, have you noticed all the bedbugs root plants growing up here?

Yes, doooooo it! But if you so much as dig up one of those devil weeds I clobber you with it!

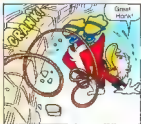

Whatever you say, Lammington.

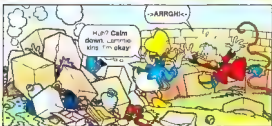

«Grump»

Next morning, the assault on Itada Pitta begins —

"But the Incas were more clever than I realized! I spent many hungry days trying to discover a clue that would tell me which was the safe bridge!"

"To no avail! Each and every bridge looked safe! There were no visible signs of booby traps!"

"Finally, goaded into action by hunger, I decided there was no alternative but to risk crossing the bridges!"

"I survived two traps, but when the third bridge I tried fell out from under me..."

"I found that was too weak from hunger to pull myself up out of the chasm!"

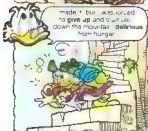

"The only thing I could do was hang helplessly from the side of the chasm and rest!"

"...hoping against hope that I'd regain enough strength to climb out before I died from starvation!"

made it but was forced to give up and slide down the mountain...delicious from hunger lucky a friendly llama herder found me and nursed me back to health

Aha! He fed you badanga roots, right?

No, doggone it! Llama milk! If he'd tried to feed me a badanga root I'd have spit it out!"

Whatever you say...ammekins

It takes a full day for Scrooge's rebellious stomach to calm down —

"We ration your water carefully. Figure we can make it last three—maybe four days."

We could get more in the village. More food. Look!

- Short : $\Rightarrow$ not leaving this mountain a second time without the treasure

Then if worse comes to worst, we'll have to make the water last five days.

Will you forget that message?

Will you forget that message?

The only present I want is the treasure, and I want it as soon as I can get it today!

Whatever you say, Lammykins!

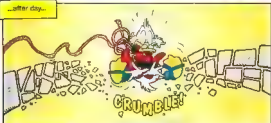

It takes a few hours for Scrooge to recover from that disaster, but eventually —

And so it goes,
day...

...after day...

...after day!

«Grumble
grumble
grumble!»

Have a hard day at the office, dear?

Doggone it. Two more failures today! That makes ten since we've been up here!

And all we got to show for it are bumps and bruises.

Awwww, cheer up!
There are only four bridges left. You're sure to find the safe one in the morning!

I'm not so sure! 16 out of the original 20 bridges proved to be traps! Either I've been very unlucky in my choices

...or they're all booby-trapped! Or maybe ->gasp!<- the safe one fell down all by

No. It was just my stomach grumbling. We haven't eaten in four illys, remember?

The big day brings a big idea —

Woke up, Beatrix. I took a sleepless night, but finally figured out how to get across the chasm.

Huh?

You mean you found the safe bridge?

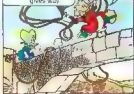

Ha! Ha!

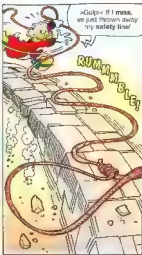

But we decided it's high time I make my own bridge!

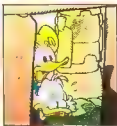

You're going to leave the other side?

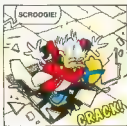

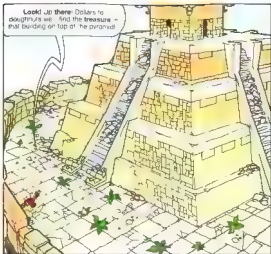

Yes, but not from here! Even the world's greatest cowboy couldn't throw a rope that far!

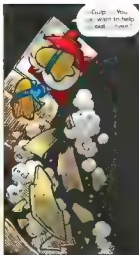

But wasn't such a bad cowboy myself, so I can just get half-way over before this deathtrap gives way.

Oh, that second roof probably has some sort of religious significance!
It bet all this stuff does.

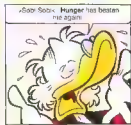

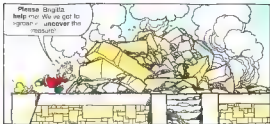

RUMMMMMBLE!

Quick! We've got to get out of here!

KA-WHUMP!

"But the Chief had warned me they're poisonous if not cooked right, and I was kicked out of the village before could learn the secret!"

It takes many hours of hard work to clear away the rubble

So that's why they displayed the treasure under a second roof! To protect it when the trading caved in!

And many more hours to ferry the treasure out of Itada Pitta across the rope bridge —

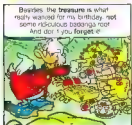

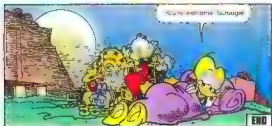

But finally it's all accounted for —

I'll stand guard up here! You boys run down to the village and tell the Indians to come up and get their share

Okay, Uncle Scrooge! We'll be back in the morning!

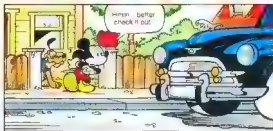

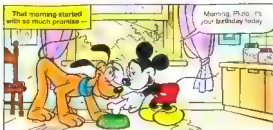

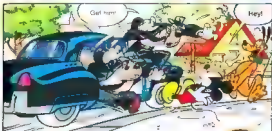

Every Dog Has His Day

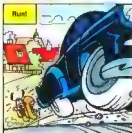

Some days just don't go as planned! Normally Pluto pretends to spend his evenings in front of the fire.

but tonight he is far away from home! Pluto's on an important mission and nothing, absolutely nothing, is going to stop him.

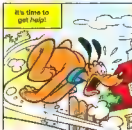

And didn't that guy mention a forest?

Back to the forest!

No!

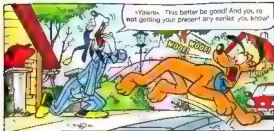

That's it! They've taken Mickey to the Black Forest!

It's time to get help!

Pluto? What's the fuss?
Your party is hours away!

He might stand a chance.

Now what? The Black Forest is a big place! And not a very nice one at that!

Hey! There's a faint scent similar to that of the black car!

The scent leads into the forest! Oh,
Pluto doesn't like the dark at all.

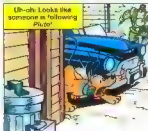

Hmm. Mickey has been here, alright.

but the scent is too faint!
Pluto can't follow it.

Uh-oh! Looks like someone is 'following Pluto'!

»Phew!«
False alarm!

Copy that!
They're bringing him
in now!

There's no trace of Mickey any—

Let go of me, you jerk!

There's nothing Donald enjoys more than kicking back at his favorite fishing hole. And there's nothing his nephews like better than reading and dreaming about days of yore —

Kappa! Kappa! Kappa!

Boy! Those Knights of Old were sure something

You said it. They were brave and honorable and utterly selfless when it came to good-deed-doing.

What role models.

Aw, quit flapping your lips, fragments! You'll frighten the fish.

«Feh!» As far as role models go, Uncle Donald is seriously wanting.

No doubt about it! All he wants to do is fish.

Don't kid yourselves. I'd been born in the days of chivalry. I'd have made a first-class knight!

You? Knights were self-sacrificing and courageous!

No offense, but you could hide your courage behind a postage stamp.

Yeah? Maybe I've never had the chance to prove my mettle! Who gets to put on armor nowadays?

What about knightly good deeds? You can do them without armor.

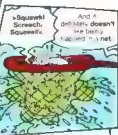

People today are jaded and suspicious. Nobody wants a helping hand anymore!

Believe me, if some poor soul did need my help, I'd be there in a flash!

Whoa! Hold the phone. A bite!

Man, I feel like a whopper! Hurry! Get the net!

Fight here, Uncle Donald!

Happa want everyone to live together in peace - refuse to take sides in fight!"

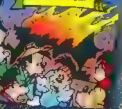

Here powerful Ronin - masterless samurai, master warrior - to combat marauding Tengul

"Tengu, furious! Harass humans! Raid villages. Try to get humans to leave!"

"Humans most desperate" Had to protect new home. Came up with plan!"

"Tengu attack on field of battle!
Ronin face them!"

"Ronin confront Chief Tengu in battle! Chief Tengu defeated."

"Chief Tengu refuse to commit to this promise..."

"Ronin demand vanquished Chief Tengu — on his Sacred Honor promise to live peacefully with humans and Kappa on mountain!"

"so enraged, Ronin drive defeated Tengu army into cave in mountain! Ronin

"Temple built on a hill. Temple priestesses charged with making sure Tengu never escape to cause trouble again!"

"Mountain at peace once more. Kappa help humans irrigate their fields. Everybody okay."

"Mighty Ronin then disappear into mists of history!"

"That was then! What about now?"

"Oh my! Sad things."

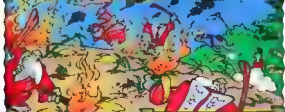

"Recently, strong earthquake shook mountain. Fissure cracked open and Tengu escaped!"

"Tengu furious at being imprisoned! More furious when they see how humans have stripped mountain of trees over many years!"

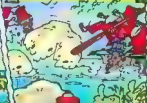

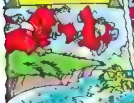

"Angry Tengu go on rampage!"
Ruin farmers' fields. Terrified humans flee mountain!

But Tengu still angry!
Mad at little Kappa for helping humans.

They muddy our river. Try to drive us away too. Or worse: force us to go to war against them!

"We won't leave,

Miserable and heavy-hearted, Donald returns to the under-water Kappa village.

and that's what happened. Great Chief! The whole mission was an utter failure! A fiasco!

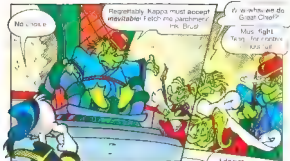

The Tengs absolutely refused to accept our peace offer. And worse, they've taken my nephews hostage.

Oh, dear. Poor, poor Unica San.

You did everything you could to keep the kids out of clutches of terrible Tengs, right?

«Sigh»
wouldn't I say that!

Woe! These are bad tidings. Indeed! Only one thing to do now. We have no other choice.

No chaos.

Regrettably, Kappa must accept inevitable. Fetch me parchment, Ink Brush.

Is whatever we do Great Chief?

Must fight Teng. For centuries, our fall.

Kappa make Formal Declaration of War on Tengu. Challenge to organized, definitive, honorable battle or down?

I do not despair in joining it at crack in earth where mighty quake free Tengu.

What about me Chief?

War at temple like Sam. Pray for rain down. Temple is safe place for you whatever we wish for you.

Guess or?

ugh

That night

Thanks for listening. Maybe I just had to get those rampaging feelings off my chest. My Dicks are prisoners and I'm all alone.

Only I was such a coward. If only I hadn't run away without looking back to see if they needed help.

Somehow some way we got inside the kids back.

That's impossible unless the battle is won. Or better still, prevented.

But only our legendary Robin with the fearless heart could accomplish that.

The Hero's armor has been preserved here in the Temple awaiting the hero's return. Now more than ever we need him.

The Tengs
would quake with fear at the sight of the Ronin in his bustle dress

But alas, until the great Ronin returns, his armor must never be touched by anyone else!

As you say,
he lived five hundred years ago!

I would get your boys back — and possibly put the foggy into a reasonable negotiating state of mind!

It's sadly what his chances of returning to us in our time of need?

Now
must retire!
Good night!

What are the chances?

In the wee hours —

Um? What
do you want,
Bugsy?

You know I had the same idea.
What if I take this armor and impersonate the Baron?

The angry
birds are frightened —
his head as Mike says — maybe they can be scared in a backdoor.

Anyway, it's my only chance to save the boys! Just hope Mike doesn't catch wind of my scheme.

If she knew was wearing this armor, she'd have a conniption fit!

Down breaks! Its dim light finds two armies amassed on the field of battle —

These Tengu are a nasty bunch!
They've invited us out to watch the carnage!

And you Kappa prepared to join your ancestors?
Our war is about to begin!

Honorable Tengu, —
Kappa beg you! Put down your arms. Do not make war!
Make peace!

>Psh!< We split on your feeble peace offerings! Only after defeat will make us agree to your terms!

At a lost before I begin Kappa are a bit weak didn't quite catch that! Did you say you'd battle me by yourself?

Yeah. Coulda we just get along instead?

Don't go easy on me! You may defeat me, but I'll fight like a demon!

That's what will rally my fearful forces. My ancestor was brave enough to do the same.

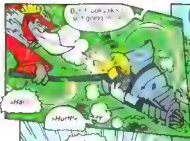

YAAARGH!

Up. This was supposed to happen.

Most miserable turn of events. Legendary Ronin not hold his ground!

Yeah. Notice anything strange guys?

I say. There's something familiar about the way that Ronin runs from danger!

Now then you'd want you to swear on your honor to bring peace with the Kappa and turn the blood-washing regret into tears.

If you don't go for it, then I'll give you back into the mountains and seal up the Kappa's roaring forever.

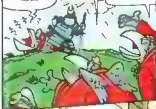

But Go ahead!

Tengu will never live in peace with Kappa.

What?!

Are you crazy Chief?

The last time our leader swears on his own to defy the Ronin.

It took five hundred years before we felt sunshine on our feathers again.

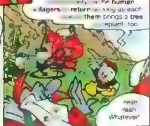

Agree to his terms or we get a new Chief.

It's all right. Swear it all upon my honor. -Grumble-

Why do the human villagers return us to us each year? They bring a tree report too.

Yeah, yeah. Whatever!

One last thing! Go harness your underground city and leave your weapons there! Then you may enjoy this mountain with your eyes open!

Donald! A much too coincidental plot device

No, the fact that the counterfeiters looked an empty warehouse means they either own it or rent it

In either case, a search of the public records should give us the name of at least one member of the gang!
And then -

Be-gone it, Mickey! Do you

As is a little ahead of schedule, Maude waits for Mickey, after having the cops stop Bob T. until the hack saw the lot.

And we had to thank that, to keep him from finding out that you turned the two age locker the warehouse and the car.

But tell you, he is not much of a detective without me. He is never even find the clues we wanted.

It sure has, being his best Donald too. The important thing, why he is enjoying himself.

How could he not when I'm along for the ride? Why, Mickey practically begged me to help him crack this case.

Oh, so? You are sure he doesn't suspect anything?

Not a chance. That is one important house is a complete, clueless.

Or maybe not!

Yep, it's a set-up all right. Donald's in on it, and so is Minnie. They got together to give me a mystery for my birthday.

A bit too easy a mystery though - mean, even the world's dumbest crooks are that careless.

I was so obvious, I started questioning everything.

"and realized I've seen those two goons before - at Minnie's fitness club!"

"They're just a couple of would-be actor/models who spend their days pumping iron and admiring themselves!"

Heh! Even Donald's a better actor! I'll have to mention that when I tell him we figured it out.

• Jip! War a minute! I can't tell 'im if I don't play along to the bitter end. I'll rule their present!

Of course, that does mean I can't have some fun with Donald on the way! Heh heh.

Minutes
later —

Doggone that mouse! How'd he ever get a reputation as a big-shot detective when he's so easily redacted?

More importantly, how am I ever going to get him back on the right track before it's too late and he ruins the surprise?

Heh! I'll bet Donald is fit to be tied! Well, I'll just let him sweat it until the very last minute!

Good! I'll bet his counterfeit printing press is in there!

Hmph.
More likely his collection of old telephone pole mascots.

"Talking pictures had arrived while he was shooting it, and when even the animated cartoons added sound."

"...Keystone realized silent movies were dead and closed his Studio — on November 18, 1928!"

"Legend says he even burned the negative and all prints of Go West, Young Boob in a fit of pique!"

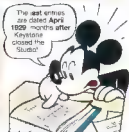

We still have to get to that candy store.

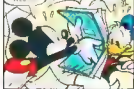

Wait! Wait! This ledger lists all the expenses for Go West, Young Boob.

The last entries are dated April 1929 — months after Keystone closed the Studio!

Look! The next to-last entry is the cost of building an air-tight vault on Studio grounds. But who is that charged to Go West?

Because it was built to contain the last expense — a print of Go West is safety film instead of perishable nitrate.

Do you realize what this means? Keystone built that vault to make sure his last film would survive!

So So So So!

So it'd be worth millions today! Why, film museums and collectors would fight just to bid on it.

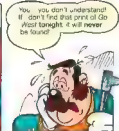

Kind of explains why that guy broke in here, huh?

Funny, I was just thinking it explains why you two broke in.

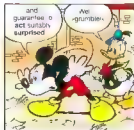

Wink!

Seen

This is the Museum!

Yes. Grandpa set up an exhibit for each one of his moves. Although there aren't any signs or info on them.

That's why, think he can't vault back to be in here somewhere.

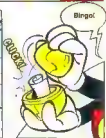

But where?

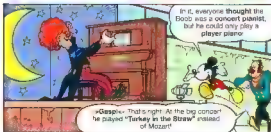

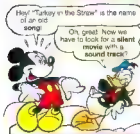

There's no way to know what we look around!

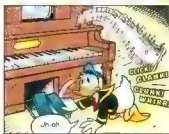

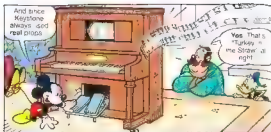

There's no way to know until you look at you, not!

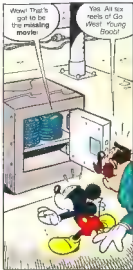

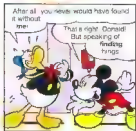

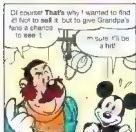

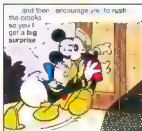

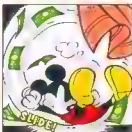

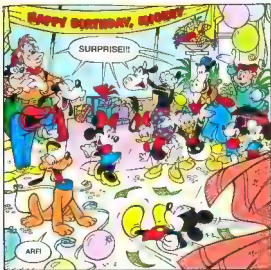

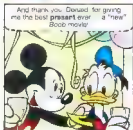

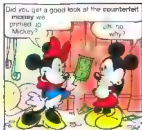

Hah! That double surprise really floored you, didn't it?

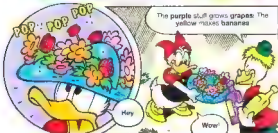

I knew we could pull it off! You were really surprised.

Laugh and learn – Lernen und dabei Spaß haben, ist auch dieses Jahr wieder ganz einfach: mit der neuen English Edition des Lustigen Taschenbuchs. Sechs witzige Geschichten der Glücksritter aus Entenhausen wurden sorgfältig für deutsche Leser überarbeitet. Ein ausführlicher Vokabelteil zu jeder Episode macht das Verstehen noch einfacher. Und weil aus Dagobert Scrooge wird, aus Daniel Dösentrieb Gyro Gearloose oder aus Dussel Feathry Duck, klärt ein heiteres Glossar am Ende darüber auf, wie die Figuren im englischen Original heißen.
